Young drivers may face new restrictions

It's time for Ontario to look at ways to make its roads safer by considering new restrictions on young drivers, Premier Dalton McGuinty said yesterday.

Graduated licensing

Ontario's graduated licensing system, introduced in 1994, already places strict restrictions on new drivers, including maintaining a zero blood-alcohol level while driving and limiting the number of passengers.

Ontario roads are among the safest in North America, but a recent accident north of Toronto that claimed three young lives serves as a grim reminder that more work may be needed, he said.

"You never want to overreact to any one tragedy, but the fact is that when a family loses a child — and whether they're 18 or they're 27, in the eyes of a mom or dad, they're still your child — it makes you want to think about it again," McGuinty said in Welland.

Transportation Minister Jim Bradley, who hinted about the possible changes Wednesday, said he's been talking for some time to police, insurers and other organizations about enhancing driver safety.

"We're looking at all aspects of road safety," he said.

"We've seen some declines in terms of accidents, in terms of deaths, in terms of injuries, but we're not satisfied as a province until we have reduced the risks even further."

For nearly two years, Mothers Against Drunk Driving Canada has been pushing the province to go further and extend the zero blood-alcohol restriction on drivers until age 21, when most new drivers have already completed the two-phase licensing system.

Skin cancer rates soaring for women: Study

Cases of the deadliest form of skin cancer are soaring among young women in the United States, a trend that some experts say parallels the surge in the million-dollar tanning industry.

A study released yesterday by the National Cancer Institute found the annual incidence of melanoma among young women has risen by 50 per cent since 1980. No such rise, however, was seen in young men.

> "I predict we'll see a worsening of the situation."
> Dr. David Hogg

Canadian experts say a similar rise in melanoma rates among young women is likely happening north of the border, too, and are calling for restrictions on the tanning industry that would include an all-out ban for youth under the age of 18.

"I predict we'll see a worsening of the situation," said Dr. David Hogg, a cancer physician at Princess Margaret Hospital. "We'll see a spike in melanoma-related deaths due to the increase in the tanning industry."

Investors not sold by new iPhone launch

WIRELESS Rogers Communications Inc. is poised to reap the rewards of the most eagerly anticipated product launch in Canadian wireless history, but the coming of the iPhone has done little to soothe investor fears about the prospect of a more competitive industry down the road.

Shares of Rogers have slumped more than 13 per cent since chief executive Ted Rogers revealed in late April he had a deal to bring Apple Inc.'s iPhone to Canada.

The decline comes despite predictions by some analysts that Rogers' launch of the iPhone today across Canada will boost the growth of new post-paid subscriber accounts by 20 per cent over the next year.

Shares of Telus have also fallen more than 10 per cent over the past few months amid similar competition concerns.

Officers assist with delivery of baby

When she gets a few years older, four-day-old Alexa Eleni Angeliki Kaklamanos will hear a story from her parents that will make Babar The Elephant and The Cat In The Hat sound dull by comparison.

Baby Alexa will hear the true life story of how she was born in the foyer of her family home in Markham on Tuesday, with the assistance of two York Regional Police officers, neither of whom had ever witnessed a live birth before.

Alexa was four days past her due date, when labour kicked in suddenly, giving the Kaklamanos family no time to get to Markham Stouffville Hospital.

"I let out a primal scream — one strong push and she was there," Dimitra recalled yesterday.

Her husband, Dimitri, sat by her as she spoke yesterday at the family home, holding 7-pound, 10-ounce Alexa.

"I let out a primal scream — one strong push and she was there."
Dimitra Kaklamanos

York police constables Sebastian Cultrera, 28, and Anandvir Gill, 24, arrived at the Kaklamanos home a few minutes before paramedics, and saw the mother and newborn daughter on the floor.

There was a scare as Cultrera noticed Alexa's umbilical cord was wrapped dangerously around her neck and she didn't appear to be moving. Cultrera directed Gill to remove the cord as he called for medical assistance.

Neither of the police officers is a father, and neither had seen a live birth before. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Nastasia Inez Elzinga, 19, the lone survivor of a crash in Muskoka that killed three friends, takes a moment to collect her thoughts at a friend's home yesterday.

Shattered dreams

Survivor recalls deadly Muskoka crash

The wind was in her hair and the sun on her face, her favourite song was playing. They were driving fast in bright sunlight on a glorious stretch of road in Muskoka and she was thriving on the trees, the lake, the freedom of summertime.

"It was so great. I remember thinking this is the best. I love this song. I love these people. I love this place. If it had lasted it would have been the best weekend of the summer," she says.

"I can't quite believe he's gone."
Nastasia Inez Elzinga

And that would be the last perfect moment of summertime for her.

Seconds later, Nastasia Inez Elzinga, 19, known to her friends as Staz, would be choking on water and fighting for the surface, the lone survivor in a July 3 crash that took the lives of the driver of the car, her boyfriend, best friend, mentor and tormentor Tyler Mulcahy, 20, and his friends Cory Mintz, 20, and Kourosh Totonchian, 19.

Elzinga is by turns laughing and happy, then calm, then wracked with grief. She is almost always surrounded by friends who, like her, are shocked by the magnitude of the crash.

"I can't quite believe he's gone. All day long, I keep thinking, 'Oh, I've got to call Tyler.' Or I see something and think, 'I should tell Tyler about this.'" TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Youth not immune: Crown

COURT The youth accused of belonging to a homegrown terror cell may not have known about a conspiracy to attack the country, but it is "implausible that he remained immune" to the group's aims since he was the ringleader's "disciple," a Brampton court was told yesterday.

In closing remarks, Crown prosecutor John Neander said it was an "insult to reason" to suggest the youth did not know what the group was about, particularly since the alleged ringleader had a penchant for "broadcasting his views."

Ex-Livent exec grilled

Former Livent president Myron Gottlieb never gave his chief financial officer any orders to hide any facts from outside accountants scouring the company's books for its new U.S. managers, his fraud trial was told yesterday.

Maria Messina, former chief financial officer at the now-defunct company, agreed under cross-examination by Brian Greenspan, Gottlieb's lawyer, that when Gottlieb handed her a list of questions on April 25, 1998, that accountants KPMG wanted answered for their "due diligence" examination of the books, he made no comment.

"He was handing you a carte blanche to do it," suggested Greenspan.

"No, sir," Messina replied.

She agreed that they didn't discuss how she was going to do the job, and insisted her focus was elsewhere.

"My whole concern was the ongoing perpetration of a massive fraud," Messina told the Ontario Superior Court trial.

City's finance papers too complex: Official

MONEY The City of Toronto's financial statements are so complex that hardly anyone can understand them, says auditor general Jeff Griffiths.

And at the urging of Coun. Mike Del Grande, the city's audit committee has called for the authors of the statements to take a "plain language approach" in compiling the financial columns and notes that provide a report card on Toronto's economic health.

He recalled Madam Justice Denise Bellamy, who probed Toronto's computer leasing scandal, saying she wanted her report to be accessible to an average person, such as a bus driver.

"Does a TTC driver understand these? Absolutely not," he said.

Harper defends use of biofuels

FOOD PRICES Rising energy costs are a far greater factor than biofuels in driving up food prices, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said while in Japan yesterday.

Many experts blame biofuels for causing shortages of grains and food prices to increase to the point that tens of millions of people are falling below the poverty line.

But Harper defended his government's $1.5-billion plan to promote development of biofuels in Canada.

"There are several causes to the recent rise in food prices and biofuels is probably a factor but we're convinced that the far greater factor is actually the rise in energy input costs for the production of food," he said.

"This is just another indication of why we must develop alternative food sources."

Worst to first for Ontario

Ontario will go from worst to first in Canada in electronic recycling once new fees are imposed to dispose of old TVs computers and, in the future, other electronics, says Premier Dalton McGuinty.

"Right now, on an annual basis, we're taking tons and tons of electronic waste … and putting it into our landfill sites," McGuinty told reporters in Welland.

"We've got to take some responsibility to deal with this and we can create some jobs at the same time."

Yesterday, the province put in place a recycling program, including per-item fees, for all televisions and computers sold in Ontario. Producers and importers will have to start paying the fees, including $10 for TVs and $2 to $13 for computers, beginning April 1, 2009. A program for nearly all other electronics, including telephones, cameras and stereo equipment will be put forward for approval a year from now.

It has been left up to businesses to decide if they want to pass on all or part of that fee to consumers. They could add a visible recycling fee to the consumer's bill at the retail level, increase TV and computer prices or absorb the new cost.

In the four other provinces that already have electronic recycling programs a fee is added to the consumer's bill.

Canadians can't seem to leave work behind

VACATION It is corporate co-dependence run amok.

Almost one-quarter of Canadians deliberately stay "connected to work" while on vacation, even though half of us also confess to indulging in holiday planning while at work, suggest a pair of surveys released yesterday by Monster Canada.

The career portal's first online survey of 1,439 Canadians suggests many of us simply live to work. Among its key findings, nearly one in four Canadians admitted to checking e-mail and telephone messages during their holiday time.

A startling 17 per cent admit they "never really stop working," while a similar number fess up to making themselves available to their bosses "for emergencies only" while on holidays.

Infertility panel for Ontarians

Ontarians dealing with the agony of wanting to have a child and being unable to do so may soon get help.

Today, the province is announcing the appointment of an expert panel to advise the government on how to make infertility treatments and adoption easier and more affordable.

"We've been focusing on families a lot and I think it's time we turned our attention to those people who need a little help to start their families," Children and Youth Services Minister Deb Matthews said yesterday.

Infertility affects 1 in 10 Ontarians and 1 in 6 women over the age of 30, the government says. The battle to escape those odds is often a financial and emotional nightmare. The panel is a legacy of the 2007 Liberal election platform. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

RCMP Const. Annie Linteau, right, looks on as Delta Police Const. Paul Eisenzimmer displays a photograph of a shoe that was on one of five feet that washed up on B.C. shores over the past year, during a press conference in Vancouver yesterday.

Two feet found from same man

JEFF HODSON
Metro Canada

Two of five disarticulated feet found on the shores of Southwest B.C. belonged to the same man and one of the found feet belonged to a woman, police in Vancouver said yesterday.

The B.C. Coroners Service used DNA analysis to confirm that the foot found Feb. 8 on Valdes Island and the foot found June 16 on Westham Island — on opposite sides of Georgia Strait — were from the same unidentified man.

As well, the fourth foot, found May 22 on Kirkham Island in the Fraser River, belonged to a woman. The DNA profile for that foot has not yet been completed.

"It's very difficult to determine how long the remains may have been in the water," said coroner Jeff Dolan, at a press conference yesterday at which the RCMP, Delta Police and the B.C. Coroners Service unveiled part of their investigation.

In less than a year, five feet, still in sneakers, have washed up on B.C. shores. The mystery has sparked headlines worldwide and has even been the subject of jokes on late-night talk shows.

Yesterday police displayed photos of the shoes publicly for the first time in hopes that family members of missing people may recognize them.

Dolan said in all five cases the feet were not severed, but have naturally separated, or disarticulated, from their bodies.

"There is no forensic evidence to support anything other than disarticulation," Dolan said. "There are no tool marks or trauma on any of the remains."

search

Police have narrowed their search of missing persons and have so far eliminated 130 of those cases. As for the fourth foot, police are looking at a list of 159 missing women.

Man gets hit by truck, then steals it

ANDREW COWIE
for Metro Canada

An Edmonton man who was hit by a truck stole the vehicle moments later as the driver got out to check on him.

The driver was going south along 106 Street and between 99 and 100 Avenues early yesterday when he struck a man running out on the street, breaking the truck's windshield.

The victim fell to the ground and as the driver got out, checking on the condition of the man, several other males on bikes arrived on scene telling the driver to leave the area.

When the driver and the men were speaking, the suspect got up from the ground and jumped into the truck, speeding off from the scene.

The truck, a 1991 Dodge D200, was last seen driving north towards Jasper Avenue.

Police describe the suspect as a 20-year-old Caucasian male, five-foot-10, 150 pounds, with long, dirty, unkempt dark-brown hair. He was last seen wearing dark blue jeans and a dark-coloured t-shirt.

Anyone with information is asked to call police at 780-423-4567.

Warning labels for antibiotics

TENDONS Health Canada announced yesterday that it will ask makers of a class of antibiotics to include a prominent warning on the label that the drugs can lead to tendon ruptures.

The announcement follows on the heels of a similar policy decision from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. That agency revealed Tuesday that it was asking manufacturers of fluoroquinolone drugs to put a "black box" warning — the FDA's most stringent safety labelling requirement — on their products.

In an e-mailed response to questions posed Tuesday, Health Canada said it will ask manufacturers of fluoroquinolones to include a "box warning" on the product monographs alerting people who take the drugs of the fact they may be at higher risk of tendon ruptures.

Risks unknown with nanoproducts

TECHNOLOGY An expert panel says too little is known to adequately assess the human and environmental risks posed by nanomaterials and nanoproducts.

A nanometre is one millionth of a millimetre.

Nanomaterials are used in a range of more than 600 consumer products, from paint to toothpaste and sunscreen.

Nanomaterials' unique properties are what can make them useful, but scientists say they may also have unexpected effects on biological and environmental systems.

Nova Scotia places restrictions on Tasers

LIMIT The Nova Scotia government issued new restrictions on the use of Tasers yesterday, claiming the measure will help clarify when the powerful devices are deployed.

Justice Minister Cecil Clarke said he would immediately limit the use of stun guns to instances where police officers face "violent or aggressive resistance or active threat to the law enforcement officer, the subject or the public."

Clarke said the interim guideline is aimed at ensuring the controversial weapons are used appropriately by police forces in the province. An earlier study done for the province found police officers have become increasingly reliant on the so-called Conducted Energy Devices. But Clarke refused to impose a ban on them.

Obama: No vulgarity disparity

Democratic presidential candidate Barack Obama shrugged off a crude comment aimed at him by the Rev. Jesse Jackson yesterday, accepting an apology for a remark Jackson made as he contended that Obama wasn't speaking to black issues.

Unaware his mike was on during a break for a Fox News program last Sunday, Jackson used a slang reference to wanting to cut off Obama's testicles.

When he learned the Fox News program The O'Reilly Factor would air his comments that night, Jackson apologized for "hurtful and wrong" remarks.

The Obama campaign took a measured response to the incident, issuing a statement that Obama has spoken for many years about parental responsibility as well as "jobs, justice and opportunity for all."

Barack Obama appears with Hillary Rodham Clinton at a fundraising event in New York.

"He will continue to speak out about our responsibilities to ourselves and each other, and he, of course, accepts Rev. Jackson's apology," Obama campaign spokesman Bill Burton said.

Jackson said he called Obama's campaign to apologize. Though Jackson supports Obama, the two are not close.

More missile tests completed in Iran

Israel hints it could attack Iranian nuke program

Iran test-fired more long-range missiles overnight in a second round of exercises meant to show that the country can defend itself against the U.S. or Israel, Iranian state television reported yesterday.

The weapons have "special capabilities" and included missiles launched from naval ships in the Persian Gulf, along with torpedoes and surface-to-surface missiles, the broadcast said.

A video clip showed two missiles being fired simultaneously in the darkness.

Israel's defence minister hinted that Israel was ready to attack Iran's nuclear program, saying it didn't balk before "when its vital security interests" were at stake.

Defence Minister Ehud Barak's allusion to Israel's 1981 airstrike on an unfinished Iraqi nuclear reactor came at a time of intensified tensions between Israel and Iran.

"Israel is the strongest country in the region and has proved in the past that it doesn't hesitate to act when its vital security interests are at stake," Barak said.

U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice said the United States won't back down: "We are sending a message to Iran that we will defend American interests and the interests of our allies."

Spanish tradition brings predictable results

Seven people were injured in the year's fourth running of the bulls in Pamplona, Spain, yesterday.

Spanish officials say a pack of fighting bulls gored a Spaniard, knocked an American unconscious and injured five other people yesterday in a dash through the streets of Pamplona to the city bullring.

This year's fourth run through the streets of Pamplona in the annual San Fermin Festival was relatively fast and featured bulls weighing up to 700 kilograms.

The Navarra regional government said a 31-year-old American was hospitalized, unconscious with a severe head injury, but that he later regained consciousness and was to have tests.

14 runners have died in the running of the bulls since record-keeping began in 1924.

The government says a 28-year-old Spaniard was gored in the right thigh and will have surgery.

The runs to the city bullring take place at 8 a.m. daily and are the highlight of a centuries-old festival that became world famous with Ernest Hemingway's 1926 novel The Sun Also Rises.

Professional matadors fight, and invariably kill, the bulls each afternoon of the festival.

Fourteen runners have died in the running of the bulls since record-keeping began in 1924.

The last fatality from a goring was a 22-year-old American, Matthew Tassio, in 1995.

In 2003, a 63-year-old Pamplona native, Fermin Etxeberri, was trampled in the head by a bull and died after spending several months in a coma.

In Wednesday's run an American from California was gored in the buttocks and had to undergo surgery.

On Sunday, a 23-year-old Irishman died after falling from an ancient wall that encircles the old quarter of Pamplona.

Rove snubs subpoena

U.S. POLITICS Former White House adviser Karl Rove defied a congressional subpoena and refused to testify yesterday about allegations of political pressure at the Justice Department, including whether he influenced the prosecution of a former Democratic governor of Alabama.

Representative Linda Sanchez, chairman of a House subcommittee, ruled with backing from fellow Democrats that Rove was breaking the law by refusing to co-operate — perhaps the first step in holding him in contempt of Congress.

Lawmakers subpoenaed Rove in May to try to force him to talk about whether he played a role in prosecutors' decisions to pursue cases against Democrats, such as former Alabama governor Don Siegelman, or in firing federal prosecutors considered disloyal to the Bush administration.

A decision on whether to pursue contempt charges now goes to the full judiciary committee and ultimately to House Speaker Nancy Pelosi.

HBC sale talk flares up again

High-end U.S. stores' owner likely buyer

Canada's oldest retailer is again facing speculation its ancient name may vanish after rumours that the owner of a high-end U.S. department store chain is considering making a bid for the Hudson's Bay Co.

The fate of the 338-year-old company appeared in jeopardy two years ago when it was bought by American businessman Jerry Zucker for $1.1 billion, though fears that the iconic brand would be demolished were never realized.

HBC has "a very positive working relationship" with NRDC CEO Richard Baker.

Hillary Marshall

Now, three months after Zucker's death, reports say the owner of U.S. retailer Lord & Taylor, already a minority shareholder in the Bay, could be looking at buying the chain.

John Torella, a retail expert with J.C. Williams Group in Toronto, cautioned against jumping to conclusions over the demise of HBC.

"HBC is a well and long-established important brand in Canada," and Lord & Taylor's owners "are astute enough businesspeople that they're not going to change from the Bay to Lord & Taylor without doing due diligence," he said yesterday.

HBC spokeswoman Hillary Marshall wouldn't confirm any talks, saying only the company had "a very positive working relationship" with NRDC CEO Richard Baker.

Jays rally to earn sweep

Toronto earns second walk-off victory in 3-game series

BLUE JAYS 6 ORIOLES 5

They waited three-plus months to pick up their first walk-off win of the season. Then they got it done twice in the same series.

Lyle Overbay tied things up with a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth before Adam Lind singled home the winning run as the Blue Jays rallied past the Baltimore Orioles 6-5 last night to complete a three-game sweep.

Down 5-2 in the eighth, the Blue Jays picked up a two-spot in the inning to make it a one-run game before beating up closer George Sherill in the ninth.

Rod Barajas started things with a one-out single, Scott Rolen followed with a double and after Gregg Zaun was walked intentionally, Overbay's fly ball to deep centre knotted things up.

Lind followed with a single through the right side and was mobbed by his teammates after Rolen slid home safely, bringing a crowd of 22,279 to its feet.

Shawn Camp pitched a scoreless ninth for the win.

The stirring rally came hours after Vernon Wells, the team's best and most productive hitter, went on the disabled list with a strained left hamstring that will sideline him four-to-six weeks.

Bonds close to return

Contending team likely to take a chance on slugger

YorkReport

Marty York

marty.york@metronews.ca

Like it or not, Barry Bonds probably will return to the major leagues after next week's all-star break.

Bonds has been working out daily and is poised to join a contender. Clubs have resisted temptations to sign the home-run king this season, partly because of his age (he'll be 44 this month) and largely because of his off-field problems (steroid allegations), but MLB sources tell Metro the general mindset is changing.

"Bonds can make the difference to a team aiming to win a championship," an AL general manager said. "In the first half, no one wanted to touch him because of the circus that would come along with him. But, now, the pros on signing Bonds would likely outweigh the cons for a team in a pennant race."

Most likely team for Bonds: The Arizona Diamondbacks, who have lost outfielder Eric Byrnes for the season because of a hamstring injury.

• Before they obtained pitcher C.C. Sabathia from the Cleveland Indians the other day, the Brewers rejected a trade proposal from the Blue Jays that would have sent pitcher A.J. Burnett to Milwaukee for shortstop J.J. Hardy … (What's with all the initials?) … The Philadelphia Phillies are hunting for a pitcher and covet Burnett and Ontarian Erik Bedard of the Seattle Mariners … The Tampa Bay Rays, determined to prove their first-place status in the AL East is no fluke, hope to bolster their roster by acquiring both outfielder Matt Holliday and relief pitcher Brian Fuentes from the Colorado Rockies.

"The pros on signing (Barry) Bonds would likely outweigh the cons for a team in a pennant race."

Unnamed AL general manager

• And, speaking of major trade possibilities, there's a blockbuster brewing in the NBA, too.

The Detroit Pistons, we hear, are making a big pitch to the Houston Rockets for perennial all-star Tracy McGrady.

• So both Shaun Marcum and Dustin McGowan are out now with injuries to their throwing arms, and you can't help but wonder about those mouth guards and necklaces they've been wearing on the mound all season.

Both of the Jays' young pitchers have insisted that these mouth guards and necklaces were being worn for health reasons, not as fashion statements.

"They're more circulation devices for general health," said Bart Given, the Jays' assistant general manager. "I don't think you can say these devices were supposed to prevent them from getting arm injuries."

• And CFL sources tell Metro the B.C. Lions plan to pursue two quarterbacks in trade talks if they lose to the Blue Bombers and fall to 0-3 in Winnipeg tonight.

One of them is their old QB — Dave Dickenson.

For details, and lots more on the league, check out my latest CFL Report, exclusively at www.metronews.ca.

Underdogs no longer

First time in history men's water polo team has qualified for Games

KRISTA SYLVESTER
Metro Canada

Once the absent underdogs of the sport, the Canadian men's water polo team is looking to make a big splash at the Olympics in Beijing.

The 2008 Beijing Olympics will mark the first time in history the Canadian men's team has qualified to represent the nation in the water sport, although Canada was a last-minute invitation to the 1984 Olympics after Moscow boycotted.

"We have already made history by qualifying for the Olympics, so there isn't a lot of added pressure on us," head coach Dragon Jovanovic tells Metro.

"We will go and do our best and prove to the world we deserve to be there."

Jovanovic, a former water polo goaltender from the former Yugoslavia, was hired by Water Polo Canada to coach the team four years ago.

"They are a great bunch of guys, they are very committed and they really work well together. We're hitting our toughest training yet," he said.

There are currently 17 players fighting for 13 positions for the Olympics, and the final team won't be decided until right before the Games, according to the coach.

The players range in age from 18-29, and hail from across Canada, calling Calgary their training headquarters because of the "state of the art" Talisman Centre where they practise.

"Even if they miss their homes, they want to play water polo and this is their home now," Jovanovic said.

Calgary Mount Royal College student Kevin Mitchell, 26, told Metro he is excited to take part in the Olympic experience, one he calls a "dream come true."

> "We will go and do our best and prove to the world we deserve to be there."
> Dragon Jovanovic

"It's amazing. I really can't wait to live the whole Olympic experience, it's something you imagine but can't believe it's happening," he said.

Mitchell recalled the "adrenaline rush" of beating home team Romania at the Olympic qualifier tournament this year.

"It was probably the best feeling of my life after putting seven years into this and to make it now, especially as underdogs, is exhilarating," he says. "We did what others thought we couldn't."

The team just returned from a month-long trip to Europe, where they beat Italy and Greece, and coach Jovanovic said they looked in fine form.

"The challenge now is we don't have any matches in July, so we just have to continue to train hard," he said. "These guys are working hard though, and we have a plan in place to be recognized as a serious contender in the upcoming years."

Sports in brief

DIVING Alexandre Despatie and Arturo Miranda were officially added to Canada's Olympic diving team yesterday after passing an evaluation. Despatie and Miranda did not compete at Canada's diving trials in June so that Despatie could fully recover from a broken foot.

ATHLETICS The only female athlete on Afghanistan's team for the Olympics has gone missing from a training camp in Italy and is apparently seeking political asylum in Norway. Mehboba Ahdyar, 19, hasn't been heard from since leaving the camp in Formia last week.

SOCCER FIFA, world soccer's governing body, restated its rule yesterday obliging clubs to release players aged 23 or under to participate in the Olympics.

POLLUTION International Olympic Committee president Jacques Rogge said yesterday that air pollution will not damage the Beijing Games.

Enjoy this Wackness

RICK MCGINNIS

The Wackness
Director: Jonathan Levine
Stars: Josh Peck, Ben Kingsley
Classification: 14A
Rating:

REVIEW There's a triangle connecting the three main characters in Jonathan Levine's The Wackness, though it isn't love that they share, but high-grade weed.

Luke (Josh Peck) was a self-described zero in high school, neither popular nor a loser, though his dubious cachet as a pot dealer is probably the only thing that's kept him from tipping down the teenage social precipice.

In the summer, between graduation and university, he finds himself falling for former classmate Stephanie (Olivia Thirlby), the stepdaughter of Dr. Squires (Ben Kingsley), one of his best customers, a psychiatrist whose own audacious array of problems are probably best kept from his patients.

Luke has been trading weed for analysis, but he and the older man suddenly start developing a bond when Stephanie, alone in the city for the summer and flattered by Luke's awkward but ardent crush, decides to hang out with him as he goes on his rounds, dealing baggies of grass from an ice cream cart.

Peck perfectly captures the lumpen mannerisms of a teenage boy, and the easily bruised emotions that lie just beneath the fragile bravado and relentless slang.

Thirlby is just as good as Stephanie, perfectly embodying the sort of girl most boys fall for — full of the luminescent self-confidence that comes with a slight but precarious edge in emotional maturity over any boy the same age.

Their summer dalliance is believable, and its outcome inevitable, though only she seems to have any inkling of that fact.

Mary-Kate Olsen and Ben Kingsley star in The Wackness, an indie film set in New York City circa 1994.

As Squires, Kingsley has a harder job keeping the older man from coming off as too creepy or perverse, and salvaging whatever sympathy we might have for a man whose years or success have barely given him anything but a veneer of maturity compared to Luke.

Squires is still a boy, and hanging around with Luke gives him the licence he craves to act his mental age, with predictably disastrous results.

Levine's film is exactly the sort of small but well-observed essay on relationships that indie films should be, and not merely some glorified demo reel made to attract a studio gig; enjoy its modest virtues while you can, as this sort of film is becoming rare, possibly even extinct, in the grim economics of the movie biz.

A Journey back to the third dimension

RICK MCGINNIS
rick.mcginnis@metronews.ca

Journey To The Center Of The Earth
Director: Eric Brevig
Stars: Brendan Fraser
Classification: PG
Rating:

REVIEW I can thank SCTV for ruining my appreciation of 3-D movies forever, thanks to the classic sketch Dr. Tongue's House Of Stewardesses, which made sport of the cheapie 3-D flicks from the '50s that used to showed up on late night TV, their 3-D effects reduced to little more than swords and sticks being jabbed at the camera by actors ordered to break the "fourth wall" and gesture directly into the lens.

John Candy and Eugene Levy leering at the camera was never far from my mind while watching Brendan Fraser in Journey To The Center Of The Earth, which features, among other exercises of the medium, a thick glob of dinosaur drool launching from the screen and into your eye. An updating of the classic Jules Verne tale for the green screen age, it's been given the full-on 3-D treatment by director Eric Brevig with an unrestrained enthusiasm for the film's primary technical parlour trick.

After three Mummy films, Fraser is an old hand at this sort of outlandish action flick, a sort of contemporary Victor Mature who hopefully has the potential to be as self-mocking. He manfully delivers the bulk of the film's dubious science with a straight face, which is as it should be.

While you don't want to think too much about what Journey has to say about plate techtonics or zoology, its hurtling pace and unabashed enthusiasm for every unlikely new peril is the best thing about the film.

Hellboy's golden sequel

RICK MCGINNIS
rick.mcginnis@metronews.ca

Hellboy II: The Golden Army
Director: Guillermo del Toro
Stars: Ron Perlman, Selma Blair, Jeffrey Tambor
Classification: 14A
Rating:

Ron Perlman as the title character leads the way in this enjoyable, if predictable, comic book sequel.

REVIEW It always feels like something is missing in films based on comic books, something essential whose absence is only barely disguised by action and spectacle and, when the screenwriter is so moved, some sudden stretch of dialogue meant to tease out a dramatic or comic thread with a conspicuous disregard for pacing.

Just before the climactic battle in Guillermo del Toro's Hellboy sequel, we're reminded of a prophetic plot point from the first film that both sets up Hellboy III — or IV or V — and utterly deflates the conflict-to-come by underlining the likelihood the hero will survive to fight another day.

This dramatic aphasia overcomes nearly every comic book film, replacing tension with ritual as the protagonist is battered by a gauntlet of villains who, no matter their awesome power and unmitigated evil, are reduced to some CGI-assisted incarnation of the Indians who can't shoot straight in some western serial.

It's clear del Toro really doesn't have his eye on the story as much as the regular intervals when he can introduce some scene packed with striking beasties or a digitally created behemoth, at which point the camera steps back to marvel at the handiwork.

It's no surprise that the significant departure from tone and plot — a scene involving Ron Perlman's title character, his best friend Abe Sapien, many six-packs of Tecate beer and a Barry Manilow song — seems to lift off from the overdesigned business of the film with an affected giddiness that the preview audience, at least, gratefully appreciated.

French cinema wouldn't be the same without him

RAFAEL BRUSILOW
for Metro Canada

If visionary, troubled French director Jean Eustache were alive today, he might be pleased to see how influential his films have become.

Eustache killed himself in 1981 a few weeks before his 43rd birthday leaving behind a body of work modest in quantity but rich in cinematic value.

Now Cinematheque Ontario is offering a retrospective viewing of his work, which includes two of his best-regarded films, 1973's relationship epic The Mother And The Whore and 1974's quietly revealing coming-of-age story My Little Loves.

Eustache famously remarked that his films are "as autobiographical as fiction can be" and My Little Loves clearly touches on Eustache's own life as it follows a teenage boy growing up in France.

Sexual tension permeates much of My Little Loves as it does most of Eustache's work, from an impromptu erection in church to the innate discomfort of seeing two people kiss in public. The film shows off Eustache's powerful ability to inject realism into scenes with crucial details, such as a girl's lustful stare at a bystander as she kisses her boyfriend, or an ambitionless mother's empty plate during lunch.

James Quandt, senior programmer at Cinematheque Ontario, says the influence of Eustache's films on modern directors was a big reason for offering a retrospective of his work.

"Eustache has had a vast influence on the current generation of French filmmakers, (particularly in) the raw, intimate quality of a lot of their work. You cannot imagine current French cinema without Eustache," Quandt said.

The retrospective runs until July 17 at the Art Gallery of Ontario's Jackman Hall.

Meet Dave
Director: Brian Robbins
Stars: Eddie Murphy
Classification: PG
Rating:

Eddie Murphy stars in Meet Dave.

REVIEW Like most people, I miss the Eddie Murphy of yesterday. The smart-alecky, foul-mouthed Beverly Hills Cop Murphy whose career has since (somehow) primarily become a vehicle for entertaining prepubescents with over-the-top shtick. Talk about fallin' for a banana in the tailpipe!

At the outset of Meet Dave, Murphy seemingly follows suit, playing both a human-shaped spaceship named Dave and the tiny alien Captain controlling his every move from inside.

On a quest to find a mysterious orb that crashed to Earth, Dave (and, subsequently, the Captain) meet a kindly family and learn the obligatory true lesson of friendship.

It's actually a fairly multi-layered plot and definitely an improvement on the comedian's recent offerings (Norbit anyone?). Murphy's talents are best showcased when he's playing the inanimate spaceship (who can sharpen pencils in his nose and excrete money when he needs it by the way).

It's a tricky role and Murphy pulls off a glazed-over look rivalled only by the look on younger audience members' faces when a punchline makes reference to the singer Meat Loaf.

Nonetheless, soon we meet the crew within Dave, the annoying characters (a rugged officer who discovers Broadway and becomes a flaming homosexual) arise and the gags begin to fall flat, along with special effects that are simply sloppy in the golden age of CGI and a promising start ends up uneven. Mainly, however, I just couldn't help but wonder how much better Meet Dave might have been if geared toward a more mature audience. Definitely an improvement for Murphy but it still seems like he's mailing it in. Sorry Eddie, but I won't fall for a banana in the tailpipe.

Alice's House a long way from wonderland

JIM REYNO

Alice's House
Director: Chico Teixeira
Stars: Carla Ribas, Berta Zemel
Classification: STC
Rating:

REVIEW It seems Prince Charming isn't so charming after all. And he isn't a prince so much as he's a jerk.

Alice's House, a multi-award-winner from Brazilian filmmaker Chico Teixeira, elaborates on that in heartbreaking, brutally realistic detail.

Alice, in a critically acclaimed performance by Carla Ribas, is taken for granted by her taxi-driving husband Lindomar (Zecarlos Machado).

Any romance in the marriage is long gone — about the only kind thing Lindomar has to say about Alice is that she keeps the house tidy.

In one humiliating scene, Alice tries to reignite the relationship by shaving her pubic hair, a gesture laughed off by Lindomar.

Their three sons are young men following in daddy's footsteps.

They're waited on literally hand and foot by Alice, who works long hours as a manicurist, and her mother, who also lives in the apartment.

It's a house of secrets — secret lives and secret relationships.

Teixeira is at his best as a filmmaker when he brings these secrets to light.

They are terse, utterly believable scenes of tension.

When Alice gets involved in a scuffle between two of the sons, Alice's House no longer seems like a movie.

It's like a home movie gone wrong, and you want to turn away.

Ribas' portrayal of Alice has rightly won her numerous accolades.

You can see the emotions building within her as she tries to fill the role of dutiful wife.

Not that the men in her life would notice.

There's a separation between the men and women in this film that can't be bridged.

At one point, a character places a necklace around Alice's neck. While he does it, he checks out another woman's backside.

Carla Ribas stars in Alice's House.

Silent Light a tale told slowly and ... silently

Silent Light
Director: Carlos Reygadas
Stars: Cornelio Wall Fehr
Classification: STC
Rating:

Maria Pankratz stars in Silent Light, a story of forbidden love in a New Mexico Mennonite settlement.

REVIEW It's more than seven minutes into Silent Light before a single word is spoken. In fact, nearly six of those minutes are absorbed by a slow tracking shot of the sun rising on the stark New Mexico landscape.

Beautiful as it is, if you're in a rush to get to the action, you better not hold your breath.

Mexican filmmaker Carlos Reygadas (Japón) won the Jury Prize at Cannes last year with this aesthetic, contemplative drama about a Mennonite farmer struggling with forbidden love, although I'm not exactly sure it was warranted.

With a running time of more than two hours, this movie showcases family man Johan (Cornelio Wall Fehr) and his doomed affair with another woman (Maria Pankratz).

While he has not kept it a secret from his devout wife (Miriam Toews), he must still decide what is right even as his faith (and his father) remind him extramarital romance is "the work of the enemy."

While the moral struggle is fascinating enough, here it is only somewhat effective.

Surprisingly, it is not the use of non-professional actors that throw it off but the extremely sluggish pacing (did we really need to watch a three-minute scene of cows being milked?) that ends up making Silent Light more laborious and pretentious than entertaining.

Cheesy, but with saving graces

The 4th Life
Director: Francois Miron
Stars: Janet Lane
Classific:

REVIEW Montreal's Francois Miron is an esteemed experimental filmmaker of colourfully titled shorts (What Ignites Me, Extinguishes Me, Dismal Universal Hiss). He's a Juno-winning photo artist for his CD cover of Arcade Fire's Neon Bible. But all that visual panache doesn't guarantee a winning narrative film, as evidenced by The 4th Life, Miron's wobbly goth noir.

It's his first feature, and Miron's not yet attuned to directing actors.

Performances veer all over the terrain, from stiff and monotone to campy and silly. Then there's James Galway's script, from an "idea" by Giron. Perhaps it's intentionally cheesy, but cheesy it is. Giron's grubby characters look like graphic novel escapees, but they converse in Lifetime Channel babble, especially when anguished, and/or declaring their love. The gooey dialogue causes awkwardness for Giron's cast.

The story is futurist, an off-screen world of anarchy, chaos, revolution. On screen, lovely Marie March (Janet Lane) has her own woes. She's wedded to an older antique dealer, whose deep love she just can't reciprocate.

She has nightmares of a night of violence involving her disaffected mother and mom's randy boyfriend.

And there's a recurring mental image of a nude Marie entwined with a comely young woman, Chaz (Andrea Sheldon). Fans of lesbian smooching are privy to a host of girl-on-girl mouth-on-mouth action. Some might argue that it's gratuitous. Anyway, Chaz turns out to be Marie's ex-lover, with whom Marie ran away from when she grasped that Chaz was a psycho.

That was five years ago.

Now, Chaz escapes a jail for the criminally insane and comes searching for Marie with a vengeance. That's the main plot of The 4th Life. A gal-after-gal chase movie.

Does The 4th Life have saving graces? It does. An imaginative production design for a Quebec-of-the-future. A terrific dystopic rock score, with much of the "doom metal" coming from England's Electric Wizard.

The 4th Life is the debut feature from Montreal director Francois Miron.

Bale's Batman begins again

Actor talks about his inspiration for the role, working with Heath Ledger in Dark Knight

RICK McGINNIS
rick.mcginnis@metronews.ca

"I was getting real pleasure from seeing the satisfaction he was getting from it, because I could recognize the same satisfaction that I get from acting. When you have anybody who was as good as him, it becomes that much easier to create great scenes."
Christian Bale on working with Heath Ledger

FEATURE Christian Bale is that rare movie star about which we know almost nothing. With The Dark Knight opening in a week, he might be on the verge of the biggest movie of his career so far, but sitting across from the actor at a press event in Beverly Hills, it's impossible to imagine that it's going to change what he does or how he does it; averaging two films a year in what tend to be physically demanding roles, with three more films including a new Terminator movie in production, it's likely he'll just return to some set, away from the gossip mags.

Talking about his second shot at portraying Bruce Wayne and his alter ego, the Batman, in director Christopher Nolan's stygian reboot of the comic movie franchise, Bale is as thorough as any movie critic when he talks about his inspiration and process in creating the role.

"He has this great shadow side borne of the pain and death of his parents," Bale says of the caped crusader, "His creation of Batman has never been helpful for his own life. He has a great capability for violence, and he's given himself this one rule that he will not kill, because he sees how easily he could cross that line. The Joker is the one who's made him question his ethics more than anybody up until now, and tempting him to break his own rule, because if he breaks his own rule he can possible prevent the deaths of many people. And in that case is it selfish to hold onto his own principles — should he break his own principles for that?"

The subject turns to Heath Ledger, whose Joker will be his penultimate movie role, Bale is full of respect for the late actor's professionalism, frequently praising him for his "commitment."

"That was our very first scene together," Bale says, referring to a brutal interrogation scene between their characters. "And it was a great way to start, because we were afforded the luxury of, for some part of the scene, being completely alone in that room with the cameras outside, with just mirrors surrounding us, and the two of us eyeballing each other, and everywhere you looked just seeing reflections of the two freaks sitting at a table together."

"Me sitting opposite him, I was getting real pleasure from seeing the satisfaction he was getting from it, because I could recognize the same satisfaction that I get from acting. When you have anybody who was as good as him, it becomes that much easier to create great scenes."

Movie morsels

Get Smart

Steve Carell takes over the role made famous by Don Adams in the original TV series — Maxwell Smart, the bumbling but cocksure secret agent who succeeds in spite of his best efforts. Anne Hathaway does a fine job with Agent 99, played by Barbara Feldon in the TV series, ably matching Feldon's innate sexiness; the only real flaw in Hathaway's portrayal is her inability to evoke the fetchingly neurotic quality Feldon brought to the role.

Hancock

Comic book aficionados will instantly spot the patchwork of some of the genre's classically corruptible characters that make up Will Smith's flawed protagonist: Hancock drinks like Tony Stark, causes mayhem like Bruce Banner's better half (and I don't mean Betty Ross), and like X-Man, is a nearly indestructible, ill-tempered boor who can't remember his past.

And, like all three, he has his heart in the right place when it comes to saving the world — he just has to overcome his inner demons.

Kit Kittredge: An American Girl

Abigail Breslin plays Kit, a young girl whose 1934 has gone from middle class to mid-Depression as her father loses his job and her mother is forced to take in boarders. It takes too long for the story to kick in, and as a result it never gets up a good head of steam, but that might not be a minus for the movie's intended audiences — the little girls between 5 and 12.

Rick McGinnis/Metro Canada

Love Guru

Mike Myers plays a self-help swami who's enlisted to help reconcile a hockey player with an ex-lover in order to end a curse. Although the comedy is filled with terrible penis puns and cracks about midgets, Myers still finds a way to charm us with his quirky characters.

Steve Gow/Metro Canada

Wall-E

In the absence of his creators, who are cruising the universe, Wall-E, the big-eyed trash-compacting robot is left to dig mankind out of its own mess on an earth. He has developed a lovelorn little soul, until Eve arrives. Eve is a sleek creature looking for signs of plant life that would mean Earth is becoming habitable again. When she's taken to the mothership after finding the seedling Wall-E's been tending, he hitches along for the ride. It's sweet, but not cloying.

Rick McGinnis/Metro Canada

Wanted

James McAvoy (Atonement) plays a loser who is swept away to a secret fraternity and becomes a super-skilled assassin. Russian director Timur Bekmambetov (Nightwatch) makes an impressive Hollywood debut giving the film a quirky self-assuredness, impressive visuals and a great cast that includes Angelina Jolie and Morgan Freeman.

Levine sticks to what he knows in his new film, The Wackness

RICK McGINNIS
rick.mcginnis@metronews.ca

FEATURE Director Jonathan Levine probably could have saved a lot of money if he'd opted for setting The Wackness, his coming-of-age film starring Ben Kingsley and Josh Peck, in the here and now instead of in the New York of the early '90s, when Rudolph Giuliani was cracking down on crime and hip hop was going mainstream with acts like A Tribe Called Quest and De La Soul. The 30-year-old director insists, though, the setting is essential to his story, and his ability to write it.

"Basically I started out with the 'write what you know' adage in my head," Levine tells me, "and if I tried to write a coming-of-age film for kids in 2008 I would have gotten it all wrong — I just don't know what they do, with their Facebooking and MySpacing and whatever they do. So that was the first reason, and when I started writing it I started infusing it with more and more of my own personal memories from the time, and the biggest thing was that the Giulianification of New York was such a good allegory for what these two people are trying to figure out as far as their own existential dilemmas, and beyond that I just wanted to use a bunch of the music from the time because I liked it.

GETTY IMAGES

Jonathan Levine

"It was very specific to this person that it was a time when hip hop was crossing over into white, suburban culture, and I think the spirit of hip hop was something (Josh Peck's Luke) latches onto — it's the music of his rebellion. And for me that was a very defining time, so I guess I wanted to have a character who was defining himself in these hip hop terms but wasn't a one-dimensional human being. For me, also at the time New York was — I don't want to sound like an old curmudgeon — but a much more vibrant world. There were these different subcultures bumping up against each other, and there was Giuliani trying to enforce these laws that pissed people off, and you couldn't go anywhere without people complaining about Giuliani."

Like almost any coming-of-age story, The Wackness is suffused with a melancholy spirit that Levine says is unavoidable with youth, like Luke, in the grey area between their teen years and adulthood.

"I think it's a combination of things — melancholy or bittersweet, it's kind of a fine line between the two. It's like a combination of 'This is a very difficult time for me,' mixed with 'This is the only time I'm gonna be this young and innocent.' It's about this perpetual loss that keeps going on, whether it's a loss of innocence or a loss of youth. That's not always a happy thing — it's kind of a bummer. But at the same time there are important lessons. I hope (my movie) is more bittersweet than melancholy, but it's a dark place to go. The good thing is that when you're young is that it washes off your back in a way that it doesn't when you're older."

3D Animation and Graphic Design Careers
The game and graphic design industry is thriving and produces an ever-growing demand for artists who specialize in animation and design. The School of Design at Herzing College can help you by providing the training necessary to succeed in game animation or graphic design. The animation skills learned can be applied to Gaming, TV or Film and the graphic skills to print and web design. It takes more than imagination to be a game animator or graphic designer. We can help you to take your ideas from concept to completion and beyond.

Colourful gazing

VERONICA BOODHAN
for Metro Canada

Bright colours are heating up this summer with handbags, shoes and now makeup being offered in more vibrant shades.

"There was a need for a more modern colour palette," explains Lori Taylor, professional artistry relations manager at Smashbox Cosmetics.

Smashbox, a California-based company, offers a large selection of these playful eye shadows. Their newest line, Desert Chic, includes colours ranging from neutrals to turquoise.

"The summertime is to have fun, especially with these new colours," says Taylor.

To find the most flattering colours for you, Taylor recommends basing your choices on eye colour.

"Pick a shade you like but don't contour and highlight. Apply a wash of colour across the lash-line to the natural crease (of the eye.)"

While fashion is helping dictate the trends in makeup, bolder eye shadow is representing a new, brighter attitude among women.

"It's bright outside, so be bright! Look at your personal style and go with that."
Caitlin Callahan, artist at MAC Cosmetics

"It's bright outside, so be bright! Look at your personal style and go with that," advises Caitlin Callahan, senior artist at MAC Cosmetics.

MAC, originally a Canadian company, is known for its emphasis on the eyes.

Yesterday, it launched its newest line of makeup, Electro Flash, which features a bold mix of eye shadow colour.

"I took them on a photo shoot and they are the most versatile products I've used in a long time," says Callahan.

The Electro Flash container is split into two parts. On one side, there is a mix of three colours and one complementing shade on the other side.

"It's a beautiful, translucent veil that has depth. All together it makes (putting makeup on) easy," she says.

The new collection is a throwback to the glamour-rock trend of the '70s.

For those thinking of casting themselves away from the trend of bright eye shadow, Callahan insists this makeup is meant for everyone.

"Anyone can wear these colours. It's more about style, not about race or age."

This season's bold eye shadow shades represent a new, brighter attitude among women.

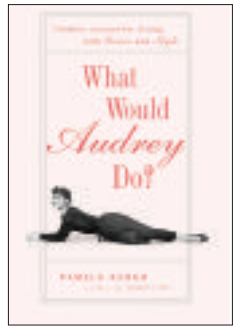
Timeless Audrey

Taking a page from the enduring icon's style book

BOOKS Audrey Hepburn is the anti Britney.

Brit should pick up a copy of What Would Audrey Do?: Timeless Lessons For Living With Grace And Style by Pamela Keogh, author of Audrey Style, Jackie Style and Elvis Presley: The Man. The Life. The Legend.

Audrey Style took 10 years of research, interviewing relatives and Rob Wolders, Hepburn's partner till she died in 1993 at 63 of cancer.



What Would Audrey Do? by Pamela Keogh, $24.50.

This is Audrey Lite, a self-help Audrey Primer like Miss Manners.

"Audrey Style, Jackie Style and Elvis were big, serious bios," says Keogh over the phone from New York. "This is looser, rowdier and fun. What could we learn from A.H.?"

To wear undergarments, for one.

That it coincided with the meltdowns of the Lohans, Richies and Hiltons was fortuitous but coincidental. "This took so long, I was writing it way before they all blew."

I was smitten with A.H., as are people of all demographics. She is an icon to girls and grandparents.

"The young girls know her movies. They don't know World War II," Keogh says. "They see her on screen and she seems like a nice person. She is childish and grown-up at the same time. Her honesty, beauty, vulnerability and genuine guilelessness are appealing."

A.H. is also a style icon: White shirt, LBD, ballet flats, oversized glasses and black capri pants. She was the muse for 30 years of Hubert Givenchy. An unrepentant clothes horse, A.H. stated, pre-Sex And The City, she'd "rather have more closets than a swimming pool."

She was a stick figure — size two and a 20-inch waist — but "she made non-sexy, sexy."

"It was her intelligence that was sexy. There was a depth to her, and sophistication," says Keogh. "She'd look at a guy and he'd fall over." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

ask kim

How do I prevent air bubbles in my nail polish once it's applied to my nails?

Excessively shaking the bottle can create air in the bottle. Instead, gently roll the bottle in between your hands to mix the polish. Here are a couple extra tips from beautybuzz.com: Don't polish your nails in a draft, the blowing air can cause bubbles. Also, the more you polish over your nails, the more air you put into it. And remember to throw away old polish.

watches

Watches are often overlooked because we carry time with us on our cellphones, iPods and cameras. So what is the use of a wrist watch when we obviously don't need it? Fashion, of course. It's another accessory that can't be overlooked, especially not the ones featured here. This season big, bright and candy-coloured watches are a hit. The bigger the face the better. Also, look for a thick band to match, not like those "back in the day" Baby G-Shock watches, but more like a jewelled cuff bracelet.

accessory
Beauty Talk — Push the button and the palette literally talks you through five easy steps to the perfect smoky eye. It's complete with artistry tips and advice on what brushes to use. $46 Available at beautymark.ca.

bags

Don't spoil your summer outfit with an overbearing bag. Instead, go for something a little inconspicuous like a small black bag. It will hold all your main essentials so you won't have to dig deep for your cellphone or coin purse. I had a friend who bought a really cute clutch but it had the smallest storage space that only fit coins and cards. Remember to try before you buy — test out the mini bag at the store to make sure all your personals fit.

tip
Going to the beach anytime soon? Keep your watch at home; salt water can cause corrosion to the watch.

Veteran Toronto singer-songwriter adds a little Cuban flavour on latest album

A lot of people are afraid to fly, but that phobia is especially problematic if you also happen to be a popular musician. "I'm not too big on flying," says veteran singer-songwriter Ron Sexsmith. "Actually, every time I have to get on a plane I get terrified."

Exit Strategy For The Soul is the 11th album for singer-songwriter Ron Sexsmith.

So when the guitarist was offered a free trip to Cuba to record with some of the country's best horn players, he almost said no. "That was the only thing that got in the way," he says over the phone from his Toronto home.

Luckily, Sexsmith made the five-day trek, which was paid for by Martin Terefe, the producer of the artist's new record Exit Strategy For The Soul, and recorded the song Brighter Still with Alexander Abreu and other well-known Cuban musicians. "They have the best horn players down there," says Sexsmith, "so I thought it would be a good experience for me."

Although Sexsmith says he spent most of his time in Cuba drinking and walking to the studio, he still managed to create an upbeat, yet soothing track that has, expectedly, some of the best musicianship that's ever graced one of his records.

And that's saying a lot. Exit is the artist's 11th album — his first release was a cassette in 1985. In that time Sexsmith has befriended Elton John, Elvis Costello, Chris Martin and other legendary musicians and made a name for himself around the world, though he's still not financially successful enough to tour exactly the way he'd like. "It would be great to bring out a horn section," he says. "But sometimes I can't afford to put on the show I want to."

Another thing he'd like to do, but can't, is bring Leslie Feist on stage to sing Brandy Alexander, a song they co-wrote and which appears on Sexsmith's new record and Feist's smash hit The Reminder. That, however, isn't because of a lack of dough — Feist is just too busy these days.

He tried to get the Grammy-nominated chanteuse to sing a gospel backing track on the song, but no such luck. "I wrote that part for her to sing, but she's so swamped now, I couldn't get a response if she'd do it." Not that it mattered in the end: Erin Moran, also known as A Girl Called Eddy, filled in nicely.

Thanks to Feist's minimalist rendition, Brandy Alexander will be the most recognizable tune on the record, but there are plenty of other gems on this calm, catchy disc. Song One Last Round is a relatively rollicking tune about global warming, while Thoughts And Prayers is maybe the sweetest song on the album.

Now that Sexsmith has recorded in Cuba, there can't be anything more that he'd want out of his career, right?

"Well, I've always wanted to make a covers album," he says.

"But I'm already writing songs for my next record. So it's still on my to-do list."

Air guitar heroes square off at Lee's

TALENT The hottest air guitar talent in Toronto goes head-to-head tonight at Lee's Palace for the second annual Canadian Air Guitar Championship, hosted by intergalactic rock star Robin Black.

The mayhem begins with the Toronto Open Regional Finals. Local favourites will battle it out against hard-rocking upstarts for the title of Toronto Regional Air Guitar Champion. Then, the Canadian Air Guitar Championship begins, and Toronto's Regional Champ will face regional champs from all over the country. The victor will represent Canada in Finland.

Toronto residents can enter at airguitar.ca. METRO

New devices threaten iPod

SoundCheck

Alan Cross
alan@ongoinghistory.com

As you read this, a small but significant portion of the planet's population has already given up a chunk of their lives to be among the first to own a new 3G iPhone. I've been reading stories about people camped out in front of stores waiting for this moment. Good for them.

And I get it. The new iPhone is another step closer to having a computer in your pocket. If you spent big coin to buy an American iPhone and went through the hassle of jailbreaking it so it would work in Canada, you now own the equivalent of an iPod released in October 2001.

Which brings me to the iPod. Next to the DVD player and the original transistor radio, it's the most successful electronic entertainment device we've ever seen. Somewhere around 200 million have been sold. A survey released this week by researchers Youthography shows that almost two-thirds of Canadians age 14 to 34 own an iPod.

But according to that same Youthography survey, 20 per cent of all young people in Canada already own cellphones with built-in MP3 players — and that number is increasing every day. It's to the point where some people have begun to ask how much longer we'll want to buy standalone MP3 players.

Even Apple knows the future belongs to an all-in-one handheld device — a Tricorder-like machine that offers communication, entertainment and instant information on just about anything. Research In Motion knows this, too, which is why it has been working hard on some very cool models, including the rumoured touch-screened BlackBerry Thunder and the semi-mythical Kickstart, RIM's first clamshell device. Meanwhile, HTC, Samsung, LG and Nokia are all R&Ding their brains out to catch up to Apple. Steve Jobs is still ahead of the curve, but others are catching up.

I'm sure Apple and other music player manufacturers will insist that not everyone needs anything more than a simple music player. And they're right. If all you want to do is slog it out on a treadmill at the gym, you don't need to strap a computer to your bicep.

But that's not the point.

If manufacturers can get us to keep upgrading, and if the wireless companies can sell us long contracts with expensive data plans, don't you think they'd happily throw the basic MP3 player over the side? Could we be near the end of the iPod era?

Just asking.

The new iPhone, right, brings us a step closer to having a computer in our pockets, but will it replace the iPod, left?

Next to the DVD player and the original transistor radio, (the iPod is) the most successful electronic entertainment device we've ever seen. Somewhere around 200 million have been sold.

Sean Paul

Reggae star visits basketball camp

PEOPLE At first, Tiffany Lussier brushed it off when she heard rumours reggae mega-star Sean Paul would make a surprise visit to her summer basketball camp.

The 11-year-old broke out in tears of joy this week- when Paul showed up and she was asked to sing with the Grammy Award-winning artist in front of her fellow campers.

"When the people said he would come, I thought it wasn't true and they were just joking ... I never thought in my life that I would see him," she said.

Paul dropped by to offer advice about life to several hundred campers at Montreal's Dawson College.

Matt Mays and El Torpedo

Album: Terminal Romance
Label: Sonic/Warner
Release date: July 8
Grade:

ON HIS FOURTH album, Matt Mays continues to wear his Tom Petty/Bob Dylan/Crazy Horse influences on his sleeve. And he wears it well. This is Mays' most complete (and slickest) album by far. Hopefully it will elevate him to the top of Canada's guitar-rock heap. The anthemic title track and the first single, Tall Trees, prove the gritty Halifax rocker's move to New York City has served him well.

GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM

Vancougar

Album: Canadian Tuxedo
Label: Mint
Release date: July 8
Grade:

IT'S A SHAME that some dude from MTV.com branded this B.C.-based outfit as having one of the worst band names. Never mind missing the Canadian all-girl reference: How about the fact this second outing's fuzzed-up garage-pop a la The Go-Gos and early Bangles offers up some blissful, catchy tuneage in Obvious, Vanity and the waltzing Lonely Life? And be damned if Megan Johnson's raspy keyboards and Eden Fineday, arguably the indie vocalist equivalent to Belinda Carlisle, leave a lasting imprint.

IAN NATHANSON

Albert Hammond Jr.

Album: Como Te Llama
Label: Red Ink/Sony BMG
Release date: July 8
Grade:

ONE OF 2007'S best surprises was Strokes guitarist Albert Hammond Jr.'s debut solo record. It was charming, pleasant and an all around great listen. Unfortunately, it's hard to say the same thing about his follow-up. Como Te Llama sounds a lot like what many people expected his first disc to sound – an unfocused collection of rock tunes that employ a now tired Strokes sound. Individually, the songs aren't bad — Lisa is a catchy shoegazer; Spooky Couch is a great instrumental — but collectively this doesn't pass the test.

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI

Beck

Album: Modern Guilt
Label: Interscope/Universal
Release date: July 8
Grade:

WHETHER YOU LIKE Beck Hanson or not, you have to give credit to the musician for trying something new on every album. On his 10th record, Beck teams up with Gnarls Barkley's Danger Mouse to create dark, soulful, electro-tinged sounds. It's refreshing in that it's a place Beck hasn't been before, but some songs, including the title, track sound a little too close to Crazy for comfort. Still, there are many memorable tracks, and a Beck record is always worth having, but it's not as brilliant as some of Hanson's other work.

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI

Melvins

Album: Nude With Boots
Label: Ipecac/Fontana/Universal
Release date: July 8
Grade:

HARD TO FATHOM sludge-rock vets Buzz "King Buzzo" Osborne and Dale Crover have outlasted grunge, faux-grunge, faux-punk-pop ... and whatever other rock trend passed their way since forming back in the mid-1980s. Nineteen albums in, and with two new members in tow (bassist Jared Warren and drummer Coady Willis), appreciate the Melvins more for their rock-jam prowess — unequal parts Black Sabbath, Led Zeppelin and Iron Butterfly — and less so for any lyrical brilliance or their mini-space-agey experiments.

IAN NATHANSON

John Mayer

Album: Where The Light Is (Live in Los Angeles)
Label: Sonic/Warner
Release date: July 8
Grade:

WITH HIS SECOND live album in three years, John Mayer is desperately trying to prove he's not just another pretty face. We already knew he was a brilliant songwriter and his 2005 Trio Live album showed he could jam out with the best. So why do we need 22 more live tracks. Mayer spends most of this album mimicking Stevie Ray Vaughan mimicking Jimi Hendrix. And the "I dig love" rant in the middle of Bold As Love is simply embarrassing.

Producer comes out Swinging in defence

IntelleVision

SWINGING AT SOFTBALLS: Earlier this week, I wrote about Swingtown, the '70s-themed prime-time drama, and said it was an ABC show, after watching three consecutive episodes I'd downloaded, all with CBS' eye logo watermarked in the bottom right corner.

"We love our characters. We don't judge them."
Alan Poul

A reader was kind enough to write in and correct me, pointing out the show appearing on staid, safe, elderly CBS is far more of a big deal than if it were on ABC, NBC or Fox, or any of the quality cable networks where chagrined supporters of the show think it might have thrived.

You can't help but get the impression that show producer and director Alan Poul agrees with this theory, based on a talk he gave at the Banff World Television Festival written on the Blogcritics.com website.

According to Poul, Swingtown creator Mike Kelley was in the unusual position of having a network try to sell him on the idea of putting the show on its network, and not the other way around when Swingtown was still being pitched.

"We said we're not going to sell it if they're going to turn it into a network show," Poul recalled of the negotiations with CBS network chief Nina Tassler.

"The underage daughter still has to smoke pot, the crazy neighbour lady still has to do coke, our leading lady still has to take the Quaalude and we have to want her to take the Quaalude, and they still have to have sex with their neighbours.

"If you guarantee we can do all those things on CBS, then yes, you can buy the show. She said, 'You have my word.'"

Afterwards, of course, the usual network interference happened right on schedule.

Since the big networks are riper targets for indecency fines from the U.S. Federal Communications Commission, they're cautious in ways that Showtime or HBO aren't, and so the network "happily" paid $10,000 US to have the leg of a stewardess digitally removed from a scene in the pilot where it's wrapped around Grant Show's swinging Tom Decker. Poul complained that the FCC's effect is like "a Third World theocracy, the level of sexual puritanism."

"On Desperate Housewives or CSI, there is a level of lascivious content," Poul said, "but the person involved usually gets punished or, preferably, killed.

"We love our characters. We don't judge them. There are no negative repercussions for the behaviour they're engaging in. They find that terrifying."

And that's one of the biggest problems with Swingtown — the producers can't do what all of us do every day of our lives: Make judgments and act on them. The '70s might have felt like a moral vacuum, but the world wasn't, and without affording viewers the context to make a moral judgment about somebody's behaviour — which Poul seems to regard as Swingtown's agenda — you're offering them the dramatic equivalent of braised celery while pretending it's Texas chili.

Rick McGinnis writes about music, movies, books and television, but not opera.

CTV's new drama Flashpoint delivers action

SANDY CAETANO
sandy.caetano@metronews.ca

Flashpoint is the first Canadian series since 1994 to air on network primetime in both Canada and the U.S.

Inspired by Toronto's Emergency Task Force, CTV's newest drama series, Flashpoint, will take viewers on an emotional journey into the tough, risk-filled lives of a group of cops in the Strategic Response Unit.

This elite team of cops is trained to do what ordinary police officers cannot — rescue hostages, bust gangs, defuse bombs, climb the sides of buildings and talk down suicidal teens.

Flashpoint's executive producer, Bill Mustos, (Degrassi: The Next Generation, Robson Arms), says what's so interesting about Toronto's ETF is that it's virtually the only team of its kind in the world.

"It has all the characteristics of a typical SWAT team and does all the things SWAT teams do, but this team in Toronto also has trained its men and women in psychological profiling and negotiation," says Mustos. "And this is what distinguishes them from all the other SWAT teams in the world."

Starring Enrico Colantoni (Veronica Mars), Hugh Dillon (Durham County) and Amy Jo Johnson (Felicity), Flashpoint's highly skilled tactical team gets inside the suspect's heads at the very emotional breaking point, the "flashpoint" that triggers the crisis.

Flashpoint premieres on CTV tonight.

Horoscopes

AVATAR VENUS

ARIES ♈
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
A guilty man will admit to his transgression. Showing disrespect will be catastrophic. An unusual experiment is taking place.

TAURUS ♉
APRIL 21-MAY 21
A friend will find it difficult to contact you. Be lenient with those who lack defenders. Don't get mad when you explain the rules.

GEMINI ♊
MAY 22-JUNE 21
You are someone's good luck charm. Don't lose your temper at noon. A woman will complain about her weight gain.

CANCER ♋
JUNE 22-JULY 22
A comment is misunderstood by a fool. Prepare for dramatic moments. You'll change your mind about a tight money situation.

LEO ♌
JULY 23-AUG 23
You're even more attractive than usual. A woman is upset over details. A generous friend offers nurturing.

VIRGO ♍
AUG 24-SEPT 22
History repeats itself. Your personality might provoke a quarrel at home. Nasty moments can be avoided by not reacting.

LIBRA ♎
SEPT 23-OCT 23
Avoid decision-making in the morning. Let someone else make corrections. Problems with a vegetarian lead to turmoil.

SCORPIO ♏
OCT 24- NOV 22
An answer comes in a dream. A meeting with a soul mate is possible. Laughter ends the day on a high note.

SAGITTARIUS ♐
NOV 23- DEC 21
Bad news about the future can be ignored. Make changes in a faltering relationship. A friend will be super moody.

CAPRICORN ♑
DEC 22-JAN 20
Keep your temper in check if you're hypersensitive. Don't waste your wit on sarcastic people. A staff romance hits the skids.

AQUARIUS ♒
JAN 21-FEB 18
Wear down your opposition with a smile. Things start working out for the best. Emotional depths are being plumbed.

PISCES ♓
FEB 19-MAR 20
Someone's problems will interfere with a departure. Don't tease a friend about their living conditions. Start exercising your brain more.

Brinkley, ex strike a deal

COURTS Christie Brinkley and her estranged husband Peter Cook have reached a settlement in their divorce trial, imdb.com reports.

After eight days of high drama in a New York court, the former couple finally agreed on the terms of child custody and division of assets yesterday, following all-night talks at a Manhattan hotel.

The settlement gives Brinkley sole custody of the pair's two children — Jack, 13, and Sailor, 10 — but allows Cook "ample parenting time".

The former supermodel has also been awarded all real estate holdings, while Cook walks away with a $2.1 million payoff.

Brinkley and Cook's lawyers and their children's law guardian began talks on Wednesday evening in the hope of bringing their high-profile divorce to a close.

Over the course of the trial, testimony included revelations of Cook's affair with teenager Diana Bianchi and his alleged $3,000 monthly porn habit.

Moore blasts Botox

SURGERY Actress Julianne Moore is baffled as to why women undergo Botox injections, because they make little difference to their appearance, imdb.com reports.

The Forgotten star, 47, is not a fan of the face-freezing cosmetic treatment.

She says, "I don't know why women do Botox. It doesn't make them look younger, it just makes them look like they had work done.

"You are not going to look the same as you did at 25. What are you going to do about it?"

However, Moore admits she understands the pressures of fame, adding: "It's hard for actresses. Our faces get to be blown up 50 feet wide, and you see stuff that otherwise you wouldn't. People freak out."

Aniston denies love letter find

RELATIONSHIP John Mayer's girlfriend Jennifer Aniston has blasted rumours that she discovered "a batch" of love letters from the rocker's ex Jessica Simpson, dismissing the claims as false, imdb.com reports. The former Friends actress, who became romantically linked to Mayer earlier this year, was said to have found the notes in the singer's guitar case, reports the New York Post's gossip column Page-Six.

A source tells the publication, "Jennifer was more hurt than angry at the discovery. The letters surprisingly were very touching and well written." But Aniston's representative insists the story is "completely fabricated".

Pamela confirms reunion with ex

TOGETHER Pamela Anderson has confirmed she and ex-husband Tommy Lee are back together, insisting they make a "great package," imdb.com reports. Anderson was married to the Mötley Crüe rocker for three years until they split in 1998. But they have spent more and more time together recently, and Lee recently claimed his ex and their two sons had moved back in with him — and were trying to be a happy family.

Fiancé denying break with Fox

RUMOUR Brian Austin Green says everything's going great with fiancée Megan Fox, usmagazine.com reports. (London's Daily Star reported that Fox, 22, called off her engagement to the former 90210 star after realizing "she's too young to marry him.") "We're solid," Green, 34, says in the new issue of TV Guide. "We've lived together for three years. We have tattoos of each other's names."

Madge A-Rod's soulmate?

ROMANCE Alex Rodriguez allegedly confessed his love for Madonna at the beginning of this year, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The New York Yankees baseball star — whose close relationship with the singer is a factor in his recent split from wife Cynthia, her lawyers claim — told a pal he was besotted with Madonna as they had dinner at a restaurant in January, during which Alex spent most of the evening texting her.

His friend told Us Weekly magazine: "He kept smiling, acting as if he was a little kid. He told me it was Madonna he was texting. I was shocked. He proceeded to say he was in love with her. I thought he was kidding, but he wasn't."

Just a few weeks after the dinner, Alex — who has two children with estranged wife Cynthia — confirmed how much he had fallen for Madonna, telling the same friend: "She's my fing soulmate."

Madonna — whose own marriage to director Guy Ritchie is allegedly on the brink of collapse — has previously denied any involvement with the sportsman, insisting they are just friends.

Clooney boosted my career: Ex

FAME Sarah Larson is grateful for her relationship with Hollywood actor George Clooney — because it has helped boost her career, imdb.com reports.

The couple ended their year-long romance in May and since the split, former cocktail waitress Larson has landed a string of high-profile modelling assignments.

She is now the face of fashion designer Christian Audigier's new line and is in talks to sign several more high-profile contracts.

And although the 29-year-old is sad about the break-up, she admits the relationship has definitely changed her life for the better.

She says, "I'm very happy with how things are now. I have a lot of great opportunities, doors that have opened and I have no complaints.

"I make good money, I have a house, I have all the things I've always wanted."

Farrell comes out with relationship

ROMANCE After years of flings, it looks like Colin Farrell has finally settled down with English novelist Emma Forrest, intouchweekly.com reports. The couple — who was introduced by Colin's In Bruges director Martin McDonagh — has supposedly been dating for six months but hadn't gone public until June 30, when they held hands while arriving at a screening of the German drama The Edge Of Heaven in Hollywood. And according to reports, Colin, 32, is so serious about his LA-based love, he's planning to move in with her. Colin was briefly married to actress Amelia Warner in 2001 and has a four-year-old son with model Kim Bordenave.
